31. XII. 02.

My dear Ernan.

This should have been a Christmas letter;
now it will not even reach you by the New Year. Still, it takes with it the best wishes, to you & all yours, for Christmas & 1903.

I hope the new year will bring, among other things, complete restoration of your eyesight, which I heard was improved, when you were at Hamburg.

Tomorrow we start for Paris. I have many things to look at in the Bibliothèque & hope also — since I hear that Reyillout's claws have been cut — to see some papyri at the Louvre.

À propos of cutting: there comes, in every boy's life, a time when he wants to cut. Peter must have about reached that age, I think; so I have sent him a small knife,
with which he can begin experimenting on his own fingers and your furniture. Give him my good wishes with it.

Wishing you all again a happy new year,

I am Yrs. ever
W. J. Brown,
