Auray, Bretagne.

July 27. 07.

Dear Professor Erman

Many thanks for your kind letter, which I received this morning. I am delighted that you like the translation of your book. It is beginning to sell, & I hope to sell well. It is indispensable to students of comparative religion. I am sorry the price of the English edition is so high. I altered some of the illustrations in order to make it cheaper, but even now it is 10/6!

I expect you are just starting for your summer holiday - my brother is at home, but I have come away for a fortnight's holiday.

& return in a few days. Brittany is very delightful - & the local saints are worshipped with many survivals of pagan customs -

St. Cornille, patron of cattle, is a favourite saint at Carnac. & there an Apis bull was dug up a few years ago -

Yours very sincerely, with warmest regards to Frau Erman & herself -

Alex. S. Griffith.
